SHERIFF'S SLAYER

Determined Men at Lamar, Mo., Take White Murderer Out of Judge's Office and String Him Up.

LAMAR, Mo., May 29.-Jay Lynch, onfessed slayer of Sheriff John Harlow, of Barton county, and the sheriff's son, was hanged here late yesterday by a mob, which took him from the hands of officers in the courthouse and lynched him in the yard of the buildng. Lynch had pleaded guilty to the charge and had been given a sentence of life imprisonment by Judge B. G.

Lynch's wife, mother and sister were in the judge's office when he was taken out by the mob. His handcuffs had been removed so that he might hold his several-months-old child, and he had just given the child hack to its mother when the men entered. In entering the judge's office, one group of men held the guards while a second selsed Lynch. Previously the men composing the mob had gathered in the corridors of the courthouse and in the yard in small groups talking and no warning was given of their action. Lynch is one of the few white men to be hanged by moba in the state. Capital punishment is not possible under a law enacted by the state legislature in 1917. An attempt was made during the recent session of the legislature, however, to repeal the law, which was successful in the senate, but during the recent session of the legislature, however, to repeal the law, which was successful in the senate, but was defeated in the house. The attempt was made shortly after the Lynch shooting, and the chief supporter in the house of the repeal bill was Representative Henry Chancellor, of Barton country, where Lynch was hanged.

Lynch was first confined at Lamar on the request of St. Louis authorities, where he was charged with box car robberies. On March 3 Sherfiff Harlow, in response to a request of Lynch to use the long distance telephone, opened his cell. Lynch drew a revolver and shot the sheriff, killing him instantly. The son of the sheriff came to his father's rescue and was also to his father's robberies. Mulcahy Gets His.

The biggest surprise Wednesday was the conviction, late in the day, of Jim Mulcahy, whose place on Polk avenue has long been notorious. Upon the testimony of Bert Bates, deputy United States marshal; S. H. Trezevant, United States marshal, and Sergeant Hubert Fogle, of Atlanta, it was conclusively shown that Jim was up to his old tricks. Two nights in succession the officers visited Mulcahy's place and both times bought liquor easily and saw evidence that a regular busines; was still being carried on in half pints of Old Prentice, Sunnybrook and kindred brands. A. B. Galloway, attorney for Mulcahy, pleaded for more time, stating to Judge John E. McCall that he wanted time to bring in some of Mulcahy's neighbors to tell what a quiet, nice place Jim's was, but the judge was firm and the defendant was forced to trial.

It was expected that Mulcahy's wrath would be aroused on the stand and that he would reveal some of the persons to whom he has paid tribute during the years he has operated the gin mill on Polk avenue, but his attorney refused to submit any testimony or argument and in about two minutes the jury returned a verdict of guilty. Motton for new trial will be heard on Saturday.

W. L. Bitk was convicted of selling Around Belieau wood alone these are at least six evidences of how desperate was the battle and how great the cost of victory. Each of these little cemeteries is admirably kept. Individual graves are marked with wooden crosses and are fenced. At Seringerst, memorable with Circes and Sergy for some of the most desperate fighting in the Chateau Thierry time, there is another large American cemetery, and in the same way American graveyards are scattered over the St. Mihiel salient. On this decoration day Romagne cemetery is to be opened and with the aid of the French inhabitants in many adjoining villages, the graves of the American soldiers in the various battlefields are to be decorated. At a later time, I believe the dead who fell in the St. Mihiel and Chateau Thierry salient are to be gathered in two central constructions of the construction of the const

Motion for new trial will be heard on Saturday.

W. L. Birk was convicted of selling two half pints to Alen O. Embry, of Harrisburg, Ark., while the latter was wearing the uniform of a United States soldler. Early in the day Wednesday, a verdict of guilty was returned against Cyril Oursler, charged with violating the Reed amendment in an effort to help his brother, Joe Oursler, and Bud Cuthrle, bring 30 cases of whisky from Paducah into Memphis by train to Eads, Tenn., and thence by automobile.

Dozen Are Indicted.

Dozen Are Indicted.

Heading the list of 12 indictments on liquor charges returned late Wednesday by the federal grand jury, in the quantity of liquor involved was a count against Jim Caldwell, formerly of Memphis, who is charged with breaking the seal of a carload of whisky consigned from Early Times, Ky., to T. M. Morrissey at Decoto Island, La., and removing from the consignment 23 of the 311 cases of whisky therein. This theft was alleged to have occurred while the car was in Memphis in transit and in the yards near the Union depot. This case is expected, when the trial comes, to reveal a part of the system used by the big liquor sellers to rifle a carload of whisky in transit and then file a claim against the railroads. Certain, it seems, that such a wholesale theft from a conspicuous spot in the railroad yards could not be accomplished without the winking of some official or the "about face" of at least a pair of policemen.

C. M. (alias Dick) Sylva's indictment may have some interesting revealtions in the Peabody hotel-bootlegger-to bell-hop-to-guest whisky traffic. Sylva's storeroom was raided by United States deputy marshals recently. It is ear the big downtown hotels. Emptied graves cared for with equal tenderness by the people of the countryside. It is the pian and hope of Americans in France that no grave of an American soldier will remain undecorated on this Memorial day. Thanks to the French peasants, this result will probably be achieved. But I know of no more moving or perhaps saddening impression than one may still have riding along the remote roads of the Argonne and Meuse country and seeing on the shell-torn hillside the scattered graves of so many of our soldiers. There is a certain loneliness almost impossible to describe—a loneliness which in a sense has been the portion of the American soldier in Europe from the beginning: a loneliness shared only by the Australians and Canadians. It will be, of course, impossible now or hereafter to reproduce in France the moving ceremony which takes place in every American city and village on Decoration day, and yet on this Decoration day, at least, the American dead in France are not to be forgotten, and for the future they are to sleep in cemeteries which will have all of the appeal and something of the beauty of Arlington.

The conference will have a three-fold mission. Besides the discussion of the proposed campaign for a sober, liquorless world, three problems nearer bome will be given serious attention. These are the proposed rescinding of the presidential order suppressing the sale of liquor in the United States after July 1: the proposed fight against putting into effect the constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture or sale of liquor after next January, and the arousing of public sentiment for carrying into effect the prohibition laws.

As a preliminary to the conference, a campaign has been going on all over the country for the past month, through public meetings, which are being addressed by men of the greatest prominence in the prohibition movement, and which are held under the auspices of the local branches of the Anti-Saloon league of America.

WASHINGTON, May 29 .- A noticeable upward trend in business during May, especially in those lines related to the leading retail trades which have feit the release of buying power held back by the war, was reported today by the federal reserve board. Practically uniform reports from federal reserve agents were said to point to a summer and autumn of unusual activity.
